A nurturing and unforgettable experience!

You are surrounded by supportive people and environment!

PhD in Language, Literacy, and Culture

The Language, Literacy, and Culture (LLC) PhD is focused on the study of cultural, linguistic, social, psychological, and political perspectives on teaching, learning, and teacher education. LLC is an expansive scholarly landscape that provides opportunities for students to conduct research that will transform education. Doctoral students in the LLC program pursue their questions and interests and collaborate with faculty on research projects and in teaching undergraduate and graduate courses.

“I really love the academic support that I received from the program!”

LLCer-Terrence Zhang

“A nurturing and unforgettable experience!”

LLCer-Gianina Morales

“The faculty and staff at Pitt are incredible humans!”

LLCer-Corey Humphrey

“You are surrounded by supportive people and environment!”

LLCer-Eman Alharbi

This word cloud was created by using the first two pages of recent LLC faculty publications. We captured the words that emerged most frequently from analyzing those texts.

CAREER PATHWAYS
LLC students are prepared for careers such as:
- Research and teaching universities
- Research institutes
- Educational non-profits
- Educational consulting

APPLY TODAY!
https://www.education.pitt.edu/apply-now
School of Education
Admissions and Enrollment Services
5200 Wesley W. Posvar Hall
230 South Bouquet Street
Pittsburgh, PA 15260

CONTACT US
Program coordinator
Dr. Linda Kucan
lkucan@pitt.edu